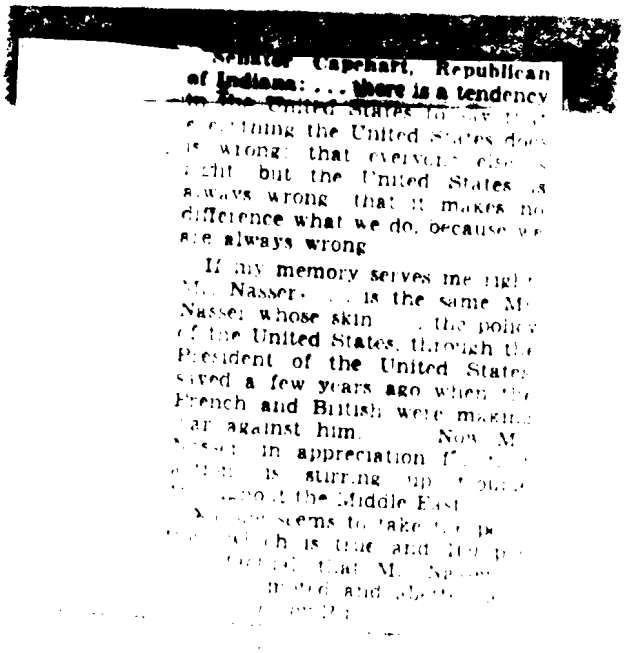
WASHINGTON STAR

20 July 1958



[redacted] Capehart, Republican of Indiana: . . . there is a tendency [redacted] United States to say that anything the United States does is wrong; that everyone else is right but the United States is always wrong; that it makes no difference what we do, because we are always wrong.

If my memory serves me right, Mr. Nasser . . . is the same Mr. Nasser whose skin . . . the policy of the United States, through the President of the United States, saved a few years ago when the French and British were making war against him. . . . Now Mr. Nasser, in appreciation for [redacted] is stirring up trouble in the Middle East. . . . [redacted] seems to take the position which is true and [redacted] that Mr. Nasser [redacted] and always [redacted]
